

Architectural drawings and photographs of a building, likely a church or a large manor house, showing various views and details. The drawings include floor plans, elevations, and sections, illustrating the complex structure and layout of the building. The photographs provide a visual context for the drawings, showing the building's exterior and interior features.